

Don't be SORRY, help protect yourself with travel insurance when travelling in Canada!

Us Canucks love to apologize. But you can have one less thing to be sorry about when you buy travel insurance for out-of-province travels. It can help when your provincial health insurance doesn't cover everything from A to Zed. Plus, it's half the price* of our regular travel insurance, so you can save your loonies. Beauty, eh?

The Canada Medical Plan offers:

- Emergency medical coverage
- 50% off rates
- Access to 24/7 assistance
- Coverage for pre-existing conditions

Don't be SORRY you didn't purchase travel insurance when travelling in Canada!

Canadians love hockey, poutine, The Tragically Hip, Tim Hortons and bagged milk. Those are the stereotypes, anyway. And we won't apologize for them... or will we? That's another big Canadian stereotype: we apologize all the time. That's certainly not a bad habit, but we'd like you to have one less thing to be sorry about: when you travel out-of-province without travel insurance.

Many Canadians love to explore the country outside their home province. After all, there's so much to experience, from Maritime lighthouses, to Quebec cuisine, Ontario's big cities, the Prairies and the Rocky Mountains. And it's easy to assume that because we have provincial health insurance – another thing Canadians love – we'll be covered across the country. But that's not always the case.

What is not covered by your provincial insurance?

- Ground and air ambulance
- Expenses to bring someone to their bedside for support
- Returning their vehicle back to their province of residence
- Extra expenses for meals, telephone calls and taxi fares

All that can add up, and you wouldn't want to have to deal with paying out of pocket for all those expenses when you should be focusing on recovery.

Canada Medical Plan
